

KME DEALER AND SERVICE CENTER

Bulldog Fire Apparatus is the designated Regional sales and service center for KME fire apparatus in the states of Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine in 2005. Bulldog traces its heritage back to the E.J. Murphy Company that was founded by Ed Murphy in 1980. In 2005 Jeffrey R. Mazza purchased the E.J. Murphy Company and renamed the organization Bulldog Fire Apparatus. Throughout all of those years Byron Brooks has been the principle manager with over 47 years of experience in the world of fire apparatus sales and service to his credit. In 1975 Mr. Mazza started his working career as a certified welder and fabricator of fire trucks for the old Continental Fire Truck Company located in Hopkinton, MA not far from the current location of Bulldog in Woodville, MA. Bulldog maintains an outside sales staff of thirteen (13) individuals and a shop staff that includes 11 shop technicians (4 of whom are EVT certified and 1 ASE certified) and two parts department managers.
